DOG VS. SKUNK TERRORIZES TOWN

people leave town quickly

a feature story

by ross kiester, cub reporter

Yesterday some people were leaving town. I seen 'em. They had been staying at the Point. They started to leave in they're car and the driver turned around to give the person in the rear seat something, or to take from the person in the rear seat, something, all of which caused her to drive they're car into a tree.

A lot of loose blood was wiped up and these people who were leaving town left for the Monterey Hospital. On leaving they asked some of the other people who had come to help wipe up some of the loose blood to help them take care of they're dog. After the dog had been in the house awhile they, these other people, thought it should get some exercise, so they let it out where upon it started to chase a skunk around the yard a little bit. Up on opening the door to shoo the dog in to the house, the skunk went in first. I sure laughed. Pretty soon I guess the skunk didn't like it in they're house so he came out. By this time a fire had got started in the next yard. But as the Point is out of the fire area of Carmel it took a little persuasion on the part of the party who was having the fire to get the fire dept. down. After a while they gets there and the lady who had kindly offered to take care of the dog gives the fire chief hell. (how'm I doin', Pete?) I guess that's all except the people has not yet left town yet.

PUBLIC APOLOGY NO. 3

In order to avoid being sued by two or three people and to settle a problem which is at present burning the Village up, the Daily at this time wishes to say that we do not know, nor have we ever had cognizance of, nor has it ever been determined specifically, or whether the rumor is with or without foundation, or if facts have or have not entered the case, or if, as alleged, that foundation of fact is not therein, we, the Village Daily, do hereby apologize for the statement in yesterday's social columns, that Arthur Hately was drinking cocoa in the Carmel-Eta Inn.

Statement from Mr. Hately: "I have never ordered cocoa there in my life. I have always, in a loud and firm voice, touched with a distinctive manner, demanded hot chocolate!

Statement from Sade Latham; O. T. O. A.: "He gets what I give him, manner or no manners, mostly the latter!"

Rebuttal from Mr. Hately: "Well, if hot chocolate always comes with coffee grounds, then it's cocoa I'm getting!"

Being as how the Daily staff couldn't even smell what was served we feel that we are, as usual, entirely blameless. Honi soit qui mal y pense!

George St. Clair Gooden, and Ralph (Hot) House, the w. k. bridge teachers, returned from a short sojourn to Hollywood to the S. of here. Both boys look a might peaked.

By Ford, who is doing a nifty Barrabas in our next local Thespianic opus, knew his lines last eve.

We traded a years' subscription to Allen Griffin for a couple of months subs of his sheet. Wish he'd print more local Carmel news, instead of copping ours.

INTIMATE INTERVIEWS
No. 5

George P. Ross once socked the boxing instructor at Stanford so hard that the assistant instructor took it upon himself to wallop Mr. Ross extensively on Mr. Ross' button.

This was in the days when Jimmy Thoburn, Whity, Reeves, etc. were some of the Old Farm's stellar lights. Since then, Mr. Ross has become a lawyer, where the socking is done in a more scientific manner. Mr. Ross has just opened law offices here in Carmel in the Dolores Pharmacy building, moving here from Merced with Mrs. Ross and the two Ross boys.

This is a fertile field for the law it is said, and if that statement is wrong, the Daily will soon correct it. Because, when bigger and better libel suits are filed, and unless our opponent gets to Mr. Ross first . . . . well, just what are the names of some of these Public Utility employees?
